The 3 main sailing areas draw some of the most glamorous tourists from around the world.

Sailing in Italy you can be sure that you'll come across some of the most captivating places to come upon by sea. Crystal clear waters, glamorous port towns, beautiful fishing villages and impressive natural landscapes make Italy an excellent choice for any sailor.

Sardinia & Maddalena

Bay of Naples & Amalfi

Sicily & Aeolian

Sardinia

Whether you're looking for luxurious restaurants and a vibrant nightlife or you'd sooner explore semi-deserted beaches and anchor beneath a star filled sky, Sardinia has it all on offer. The North East portion of the island is the go-to sailing area. Charter out of the main charter bases of Portisco or Cannigione and then make your way up into the Maddalena archipelago for an unbeatable charter holiday. You might even consider crossing over to Corsica during your charter. Bonifacio is a particularly lovely town perched on the south of the island. Just make sure you reserve well in advance of your arrival as its a very popular holidaying spot!

Sardinia itself features some of Europe's best white sand beaches and you'll find them regularly interspersed along its rugged coastline. Best explored from the sea, only a yacht will let you discover the most authentic side of the region.

Alongside all of its natural splendor there's also a rich variety of culture & history on display. The island has been inhabited since the Bronze age and there are remnants of prehistory waiting to be uncovered on every corner of the island.

Bay of Naples & The Amalfi Coast

The infamous Amalfi coast and its neighbouring islands of Ischia, Capri and Procida are amongst the most stunningly beautiful and romantic destinations you could find. Nestling within the bay of Naples, the area boasts stunning anchorages set between dramatic hillsides. Sail out of the main charter bases in Salerno or on Procida island and tour around one of Europe's most famous holiday destinations!

The Amalfi coast has been labelled as an outstanding example of Mediterranean landscape by the UNESCO World Heritage Centre. A yacht charter is a great way to do the Amalfi Coast justice and see some of the lesser known spots in the area. Stay within reach of the mainland and sail between the three famous islands or visit the gorgeous coastal towns of: Amalfi, Positano & Sorrento. If you want to venture further offshore you can head to the Pontine islands. Six small islands that are home to a gorgeous natural park. The Pontine islands offer a quiet reprieve quite different to the busier scenes you'll find elsewhere.

Sicily & The Aeolian Islands

The largest island in the Mediterranean, Sicily and the Aeolian islands off its Northern coast make for an exceptional cruising ground. This stunning destination seamlessly blends the best of Italy, past and present with an unbelievable natural setting. Sail out of either Portarosa or Capo d'Orlando, and head northward to the Aeolian islands.

The Aeolian islands, otherwise known as the seven sisters, are truly something to behold. Of volcanic origin – the islands have tall dramatic peaks that rise straight out of a perfect azure sea. The whole area is under UNESCO World heritage site protection and you'll quickly realise why. With astonishingly beautiful black sand beaches, sulphuric mud baths and undersea vents bubbling on the sea floor. You'll get a truly unique experience among these geological marvels.

With the islands all in close proximity the Aeolian offers excellent short-hop sailing. From the wilderness and cobalt blue waters of Vulcano, Stromboli & Filicudi to the historic & charming towns on the islands of Lipari, Panarea and Salina.
